What is the evidence from carers:

Caring can be rewarding in many ways, but:

- 7 times as lonely as public if providing substantial care
- 2.6 million have given up work to care – 600 a day over last 2 years
- Caring is on the up – maybe 8.8 million?
- Twice as likely to be in bad health
- Financial challenges are still as great
- Awareness of caring is increasing, but are we there yet?

Given this, what do carers say about being carer friendly? Who has to change to make this better for carers?
• 39% struggling to make ends meet
• “I’m bankrupting my future to pay for the present”
• One in 8 have seen a reduction in support – breaks remain a vital source of support
• Assessments don’t always cover what they should
• Only 1 in 6 have had a conversation with an NHS professional about what happens in an emergency
• Half who had an emergency admission, felt it was preventable
• Paid work remains vital for many
Right to paid care leave

Duty on the NHS to identify carers and promote their health and wellbeing

Better funding of social care – much more money!
“My employers have been fantastic. I work flexibly and there is a supportive free counselling service.

“A carer friendly community would have early intervention to ensure that a person thinking about taking on ‘a caring role’ understands and is able, and well enough to do it.

“We need level, repaired and wide pavements; less street clutter, clear signage for street names and more public toilets. Many of the shops are very helpful. They are patient at the checkouts and help my aunt to pack her shopping.”
Who is most carer friendly?

- Pharmacies – highest at 67%
- GP practices – 57%
- Workplace – 46%
- Hospitals – 36%

Impact of not being carer friendly?

- Two thirds to three quarters said it affected their health
- Three quarters said it made caring more difficult!
- Three quarters said it made working much more difficult
- 32% said least carer friendly hospitals had a financial impact on them
- 49% said least carer friendly care services had a financial impact on them
